Editorial Policies

Sanden Report 2008 was edited in accordance with Sanden's corporate philosophy, which is a principal foundation and framework for the Sanden Group's efforts to be a "global excellent company." Sanden Report 2008 reports information based on the following policies.

- The report covers the Sanden Group's corporate social responsibility (CSR) and environmental management performance for fiscal 2007—or the period from April 2007 through March 2008—but it also includes some CSR and environmental management activities subsequent to that time period.
- The scope of data in the report includes Sanden Corporation as well as the rest of the Sanden Group companies.
- Important environment-related subsequent events are included as notes. Environment-related subsequent events are events that occur in the interval between the end of the fiscal year covered by the report and the actual publication date of the report that are likely to have an influence on environmental management in the next and/or subsequent fiscal years. The disclosure of important environment-related subsequent events provides supplemental information that may facilitate understanding of a company's future environmental management situation.
- Environmental burden (impact) and environmental accounting data are compiled from the Americas, Europe, Japan, and the rest of Asia. The scope of data collection in "report organization overview," "principal business bases," and other articles may partially differ, as is explained in each article.
